AVOID the absurd mannerisms that once discredited cycling as a recreation. Sit up. Hold your head out of the dust. Grip the handles, keeping your arms apart and your lungs open. Throw shoulders back with back bone straight, thus giving heart and stomach plenty of room. Ride at a reasonable speed and for a reasonable distance. The IVER JOHNSON in our opinion is mechanically perfect. Its truss frame means easy riding, safety and long life. Come in and try it.

SIX OFFENDERS ARE BEFORE REEDER

Although there were six cases demanding the attention of Judge W. H. Reeder this morning, the session was a short one, as there of the men against whom complaints had been lodged forfeited their bail.

The three who left their money behind were Jack Staker and James Dean, charged with vagrancy, and Jack Hansen charged with using profane language. In each case the bail forfeited was $10.

F. P. Fiddler, who is not a musician but an electrician, was given a suspended sentence after pleading guilty to the charge of drunkenness. Robert Wilson was treated likewise for the same offense.

James Carr, a regular patron, had a charge of disturbing the peace against him this time. It was charged that he was using profane language on the street. The judge gave him five days.

BEAUTIFUL ARE THE TRIBUTES TO MOTHER

The interior of the Ogden Tabernacle presented an inspiring picture yesterday morning, with a crowd estimated at nearly 1,200 persons, the majority of them mothers, who were present in response to an invitation from the authorities of the Ogden strike to listen to the splendid program prepared and rendered in their honor. White carnations, beautiful emblems of the day, were generously distributed to all present by a committee of young ladies, and, if there was anything to regret in the whole occasion, it was that the children of the parents were not there to receive the thoughts of "Mother," that were uttered in song and address so that their appreciation of "her" might have deepened with the passing years.

In addition to the distribution of carnations, vases of flowers and palms were used to decorate the pulpit platform and suspended from the ceiling of the choir loft formed with incense-decent globes in large letters was the word "Mother."

The theme of the day was potentially brought to mind with the playing of the organ prelude, "Home, Sweet Home," by Organist Sam F. Whitaker, the appealing tones of the "vox humana" blending beautifully with the well known melody. The invocation was offered by Patriarch George W. Larkin. Three local compositions were sung at the session, all worthy of the theme, and rendered with feeling charm by the singers. The first, a duet, entitled "My Mother," composed by Miss Leona Brown, was sung by Mrs. Myrtle Ballinger Higley and Miss Kathryn Bassett; the second, a quartet, entitled "Mother," by Prof. Joseph Ballantyne, was sung by Messrs. J. Ballantyne, George Douglas, Leo Madson and Walter L. Stephens; the third, a duet, entitled "Mother's Eyes So Tender," by Miss Bertha Owens, was sung by Mrs. Higley and Miss Bassett.

William S. Wright, in good voice, sang the solo, "O, Come, Let Us Sing," with chorus by the choir and the rarely beautiful rendition of the old ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," old and yet ever new—by George Douglas completed the musical program of the morning.

"The Mission of Motherhood" was the subject of an address by Miss Maud West, and beginning with the exposition of the thought of its divine origin, "which in itself should demand our reverence," she paid a touching tribute to mothers; telling of the depth of maternal love as shown by the daily toll in the home, their sympathy and devotion in times of sickness; their unselfish love, sacrifice and prayers for their children. She also told of the blessed influence of mothers upon their children.

President Charles W. Penrose of the first presidency and Apostle David O. McKay represented the general church authorities at the conference and confined their morning addresses to the subject of the day.

Apostle McKay's Address. The address of Apostle McKay, in part, was as follows: "Every Sabbath day is a holy day, but this Sabbath is doubly sanctified, for we are worshipping God and honoring motherhood. Mother's day is, indeed, a holy day—strictly speaking, every holiday is such. A holiday is a day set apart in honor of some person or in commemoration of some event. Strictly speaking it is consecrated day. It is true that most of our holidays are days of amusement, gaiety, and, too frequently of indulgence. Christmas and the week of the New Year is a time especially devoted to relaxation and festivity often to the extent that the fundamental purpose of consecrating a day in honor of Christ's birth is, too frequently, completely lost sight of.

"But the real intrinsic value of a holiday is to commemorate an event beneficial to the world or to do honor to some person who was a benefactor to his fellow men. For example, this nation has designated February 22 to do honor to the Father of our Country; February 12, in memory of Abraham Lincoln; July 4, commemorating the Declaration of Independence. Besides these, we have specially designated Decoration day and Thanksgiving day. Each state, also, has particular days commemorative of its heroes and events, our national state day being July 24, in honor of the pioneers. With none of these, excepting only those referring to the redeemer of the world, can the ideas of holiness and sacredness be associated more appropriately than with Mother's day—a day set apart to honor motherhood.

"We revere and worship the Almighty and honor and obey his priest-hood and his laws; but next to things Godlike, we should honor and reverence motherhood. Indeed, motherhood has in it more of the divine element than anything else on earth. Creator is a title of the Supreme Being, and in bringing into existence forms of life, the mother is God's chosen agent. Indeed, in the exercise of the creative function, she is his co-partner.

"But great and inscrutable as is this, the first divine function of motherhood, it is not merely for the power to perpetuate her species that we do honor womanhood. The power to perpetuate is a gift of nature, and is common to all animal life, and the lowest forms of nature are indeed, producing, and slaughtering the young by millions. Higher up the scale, we find that the offspring are less numerous and the protection more secure. In the more advanced forms of animal life there is manifested a motherly instinct to feed and protect the young that surpasses all other animal passions.

"Nature endows almost every female of its species with the physical function of bringing into being its own kind. In woman, this gift places her above man and admits her almost into the presence of the Divine Creator himself. To bring into this world a little babe, woman literally 'loses herself' for the sake of another. The world has its heroes in science, literature, art, philosophy, invention, statesmanship and war, the seven great kingdoms in which the world's great men have won their crowns; and every man and woman wears his or her laurels because of heroic sacrifice and devotion; but not one, be poet, philosopher, statesman, inventor or soldier, has shown greater fortitude, bravery and divine sacrifice than the woman who knowingly enters into the valley of the shadow of death, and standing on the shore of the eternal sea that lies between us and eternity, receives from the hand of God a little babe and tenderly brings it to its earthly home.

"However, we do not do honor to-day to the woman who just gives birth to a child, and then, neglecting the higher and nobler offices of motherhood, leaves it animal-like, to the mercies of a cold and buffeting world. Technically speaking, she is a mother; but so is the lioness that forgets her whelps, and the wolf, her cubs, as soon as they are able to care for themselves. Such a woman is a less a mother than some women, who are devoted by nature, yet who perform the higher and nobler offices of true motherhood."

President Penrose spoke briefly endorsing the remarks of the previous speakers and commending the state officials for the attendance and the fine program that had been arranged.

Continuing, he spoke of the eternity of the mother love and the mission of woman. The supreme joy of motherhood, he said, was in their children and that, though there were many different manifestations of love, all were from the same source, only differing in degree.

In speaking of the influence of a mother's training upon her children, he said that the training was not always followed out, bringing temporary sorrow, but that the influence would finally have power over them; that after paying the penalty for their transgression, they would be reclaimed and then the mothers would have joy, "for we reap in eternity the fruits of our efforts for good."

He closed his remarks by saying that the duty of woman was to be with man and a part of him, that they might bear the souls of men, and that they would eternally rule over their posterity and be exalted to the mothers present to be true to their mission.

The benediction was offered by Patriarch David McKay.

Afternoon Session. The afternoon session was devoted mainly to the business of the conference which included instructive and beneficial addresses by President Penrose and Apostle McKay and a detailed report of the religious activities of the people of the state by President Charles C. Richards, who presided during the day in the absence of President Thomas B. Evans, who is in California.

The invocation was offered by Bishop James Taylor.

The following musical program was rendered at the session and was greatly appreciated: "Organ Prelude," Ernest F. Oborn, solo and chorus, "Come Holy Spirit," George Douglas, solo and chorus, "Nazareth," William S. Wright, solo and chorus, "Gospel Restoration," Mrs. Myrtle Ballinger Higley and choir, chorus, "Woe Thou Sweet Music," choir.

After the presentation and sustaining of the General and Stake authorities, President Richards occupied nearly an hour in giving the presidency report and in exhorting his co-workers to continue faithful in the work.

Stake Report. In the report was noted an increase in the amount of tithing and fast offerings. The per cent of visits made by the ward teachers had been increased from 85 per cent in 1912 to 91 per cent for the first quarter of 1913.

with 96 per cent for the month of May and, of 1320 families residing in the Stake, 1261 had been visited.

An increase of 10 per cent in attendance at the weekly Priesthood meetings had been noted since the time of meeting was changed from Monday evening to Sunday morning, the per cent at present being 35, as against 32 during 1912. A uniform system of record keeping, that promises good results, has been installed in all the organizations of the Stake. The organizations, according to President Richards report of their statistics, are doing commendable work.

Apostle McKay in his address commended the standard of efficiency, discipline and respect manifest in the morning session and also the large number of persons actively engaged in the stake work, giving special praise to the priest and quorums for the number of their members engaged in ward teaching. In this respect, he laid much stress on the opportunity which the church gives for doing good for fellow men. He also urged his hearers to do the will of God for it is in doing, not saying, that gives the knowledge that brings eternal life. "Put your best effort into anything that you do and in closing and give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

President Penrose also commended the work of the ward teachers, the members of the Relief Society and others in visiting the people and in teaching them the word of the Lord, and he hoped that real teaching was being done. He exhorted the people to avoid the necessity of being urged to do their duty and said that the day would come when all would do right because it was right, but that day was not yet here, hence the necessity for the organization of the church. He also urged them, especially the Priesthood, to be diligent and when they saw their duty, to do it with their might, and "no prompt men in right doing, and 'no work is required of us, that if we pursue it in proper determination and spirit, that the Lord will not qualify us to do so. 'Seek the Kingdom of God in its righteousness and all else will be added unto it.'"

Before adjournment, President Thomas E. McKay thanked all who had assisted in making the program of the day so inspiring. He also reported that President Evans was improving in health in the lower altitude of California and that he would be greatly pleased when he received the report of the conference.

The benediction was pronounced by Bishop James Ward of North Ogden, at a special meeting after the conference. Bishop Ward was ordained a patriarch by President Charles W. Penrose.

POLICE WATCH FOR LITTLE GIRLS

As a result of a report coming from Salt Lake last evening to the effect that two little girls, dressed in boys' attire, had crawled into a box car with a catcher's mask and a baseball, all north bound freight trains were inspected for the youngsters but the search was fruitless.

Pauline Blatnic, 11 years of age, daughter of Frank Blatnic, 367 W. First South and Nellie Cox, 14, daughter of Heber Cox, 353 W. First South, attired themselves in boy's clothing and left their houses. Upon their failure to return, the parents began a frantic search and the information was secured that two such youths as described had crawled into a box car in the Oregon Short Line yards at 9 o'clock.

Both the girls are enthusiastic over baseball and it is believed that the baseball implements were carried along to while away the tedious moments of their trip of adventure.

With the failure of the part of the Ogden railroad men to find the missing pair, it is believed that the girls either stopped off at some station between Ogden and Salt Lake or did not get into the cars at all.

The police at Salt Lake have been given descriptions of the missing girls and have wired to the police of other towns.

BY AUTO FROM SALT LAKE TO THE CANYON

Yesterday ten automobile loads of Salt Lake people spent a part of the day at the Hermitage. Ex-Governor Heber M. Wells and wife were in one party. Others were Ernest Rumberger and party, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newell and party and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Burton.

The day was passed at the hotel or in climbing the mountains. The visitors praised the canyon and stated that it furnished the most delightful environment of any mountain resort in the state. It is said that Ogden canyon is becoming popular with the people of Zion and that this season will be a banner year for visitors from Salt Lake to the canyon.

ROAD WEST TO KELTON IS GOOD

Yesterday Judge James A. Howell and his brother W. C. Howell, made an automobile trip to Kelton, a distance of 250 miles, over the proposed route of the transcontinental auto trail. It required all day to make the trip but they report that the roads are in good condition. They were greatly surprised at the good work being done on the highway through Box Elder county.

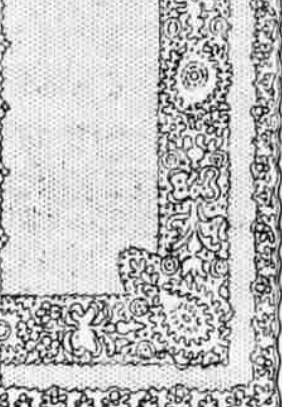

Judge Howell was born in Kelton and, added to the desire to see his birthplace, the trip afforded an opportunity to learn something of road conditions from Ogden to that point. Kelton is a small town, 125 miles west of here but at one time, in the early 80's, it was an important distributing point for the southern and western part of Idaho. At the time of the building of the Oregon Short Line from Granger to Portland, in 1882-3, some of the largest mule teams in the west were on the road from Kelton to Boise, Mountain Home, Bellevue, Rocky Bar and other points in Idaho. The late Reese Howell handled a great deal of the freight at Kelton.

MRS. M'QUARRIE FUNERAL ON SUNDAY

Attended by hundreds of friends, the funeral services for Mrs. Mary McQuarrie, leader for the last fifteen years of the Y. L. M. I. A. of the Second ward, were held at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the meeting house. Bishop Robert McQuarrie was in charge of the services.

There were numerous floral tributes in evidence, showing the love and respect in which Mrs. McQuarrie was held. The speakers gave glowing tributes to her life and work.

Miss Emma Browning sang "Come Home," at the opening of the services. "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," was given by A. H. Sander and Miss Elsie Shorten rendered "Unanswered Yet." Walter Stoves sang "The Christian's Good Night," and Miss Josephine Shorten gave "Love Divine."

The speakers were William E. Newman, Heber Scowcroft, Nathan A. Tanner, Bishop Robert McQuarrie, George Shorten and Alva Scoville. The grave in Ogden cemetery was dedicated by John Ellis.

MARKMAN TRIES TO END HIS LIFE

Despondency due to the recent lengthening of his sentence from seven years to nineteen years in the state prison because he assaulted Harry Waddell, a fellow prisoner, on January 25, 1912, and because he had lost all the time he had gained by good prison conduct by recently attempting to escape, L. J. Markham, 21 years of age, sentenced at Ogden, January 13, 1909, to serve seven years for burglary, attempted suicide at the state prison Saturday night by cutting himself in several places with a small piece of tin. His condition is not serious.

Markham had shown exemplary prison conduct until, in 1909, he quarreled with Harry Waddell, a fellow prisoner, and assaulted him with a knife. He was tried on this charge and sentenced to twelve years' addition. This made his sentence nineteen years in all. Markham then tried his best to do better and soon became a trusty. He made numerous friends, among them being James Pratt, son of Warden Arthur Pratt.

On April 6, 1913, Markham went to the room of James Pratt, and appropriating several articles of clothing, attempted to escape, only to be recaptured a few hours later by Deputy Warden A. C. Ure. Markham proved when he tried to escape that he respected James Pratt, as the clothing he stole from the warden's son was among the least presentable of the wardrobe.

Saturday night his despondency at being recaptured and losing all of his "copper" reached its height, and he procured a small piece of tin, a half inch wide and two and one-half inches long. With this meager weapon he slashed his throat and cut himself on both wrists. He did not succeed in severing any of the arteries.

Markham's act was discovered soon after and medical attention was immediately given. The wounds were found to be of little importance. They were dressed and the prisoner is reported to be resting comfortably.

FRUIT CROP IS NOT BADLY DAMAGED

J. M. White, manager of the Utah Fruit exchange, has returned from a few days' inspection trip through Salt Lake and Utah counties with a favorable report regarding fruit conditions.

Mr. White says there will be a normal crop of fruit in the state this year unless climatic conditions after this time be such as to check the growth of or destroy the crop. In some places sweet cherries were hard hit by frost, but, as a rule, not much damage has been done. No variety of fruit, in the mind of Mr. White, has been damaged more than 50 per cent, which means that there will be a normal crop.

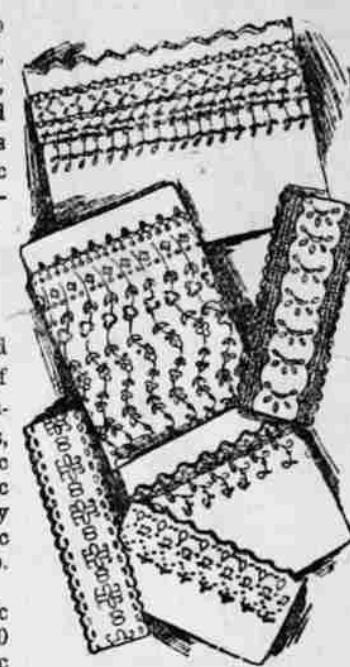

It is said by Mr. White, however, that farms in different parts of the country where he has traveled recently are getting dry and farmers
